

Happiness is a choice

What does happiness mean to you?

When you hear the word "happiness," what comes to mind? Is it abstract or more specific?

Can you share your happiest memory? What happened?

What do you think is the opposite of happiness?

What makes you happy or unhappy?

What can make you happy? What about being unhappy?

Spending time with friends

Spending time with family

Being alone

Being around people

Learning new skills

Achieving goals

Art or tasty food, like milk tea

Traveling

Cooking or reading

Exercise

Going into nature

Stress from work

Staying on your phone

Conflicts in relationships

Loneliness

What do you need to be happy?

What are some preconditions to be happy in life? What's your take on it?

A good job

Enough money

A perfect relationship

Good friends

A sense of purpose

Good physical health

Freedom

Is NOT being happy a bad thing? What are your thoughts on negative emotions?

Can happiness really be a choice? What is your take, and what small advice would you give someone having a hard time?